About

As an avid learner with a deep passion for innovation-led design and production within the clothing industry, my specialization in performance sportswear fuels my commitment to excellence. I'm dedicated to exploring functional product ideas, assessing their feasibility, and integrating cutting-edge technologies and production methods. My experience and interests encompasses various facets of the industry, including product development, scalable production techniques, material innovation, and an understanding of the market segment.

My skills span from research and concept development to technical pattern making, garment construction, and comprehensive knowledge of fabric composition and various production techniques. Furthermore, my experience extends to navigate production processes, supply chain integration, quality assurance, and optimisation, with a sustainable approach.

I'm passionate about collaborative partnerships with enthusiasts, professionals, and multidisciplinary organizations, creating a dynamic and creative environment for innovation and exchange of valuable insights where I can make a meaningful impact and forever continue to learn and grow.
